COX'S SPEECH

a single law to lift from the American people a load of war taxation that cannot be tolerated and the protection of the national treasury must be heavily reduced, and it will be done at once, if a Democratic administration is chosen in November. Without hampering essential national administrative departments, by the elimination of all other and all other taxes, the national tax can be reduced in excess of two billion dollars yearly. Annoying consumption taxes, once willingly borne, now unjustified, should be repealed. The incomes from war-made fortunes, those of non-producers and those derived from industries that exist by unfair privilege may be able to carry on their present load, but taxes on the earnings of the wage earners, of the salaried and professional man, of the agricultural producer and the small tradesman should be sharply modified. I believe that a better form of taxation than the so-called excess profits tax may be found and I suggest a small tax, probably one to one and one-half per cent on the total business of every going concern.

Understand that the term "business" as used does not include income received by wage earners, salaried men, agriculturists and small business men who are exempt from this tax. The profiteer and some of the highly capitalized units have used the excess profits tax as a favorite excuse for loading on the consumer by means of highly inflated selling prices many times the amount actually paid the government. A necessary condition to the national economy and sound business is a just proportion between fair profits to business and fair prices to the consumer. It is unquestioned that the enormous expansion of public and private credit made necessary as a part of war financing, the diversion of the normal channels of industry from their usual channels, as well as the disturbance to general business caused by the withdrawal of millions of men from producing fields, all contributed to the rise in prices. Reversion to the normal condition would tend toward a recession in the enormously inflated present prices of many commodities and property values and there are now evidences that a sane adjustment is not far distant. Deep patriotic sentiment and the people's purpose for victory, while millions of free men, regardless of wealth or condition, were giving their blood and substance many corporations and men seized the very hour that civilization lay prostrate to secure for themselves purposes for victory. While millions of free men, regardless of wealth or condition, were giving their blood and substance many corporations and men seized the very hour that civilization lay prostrate to secure for themselves purposes for victory.

In the analysis of government as the events of today enables us to penetrate the subject, we see the difference between the old and the progressive kinds of thinking. The belief of reactionaries is that government should be reactive, moving widely than it did in the past, but they seem to forget that the fundamental of our plan is equal rights for all and special privileges to none. Modern life has developed new problems. Civilization continues to build along the basic lines and attractive forces may all be disposed to be the fact remains that except for the exchange of products between individuals, commercial units and nations, our development would be slow. All of this growth goes on under the protection of government, with the encouragement of government. The least therefore, that might be rendered under government for this continuous service is a policy of fair-dealing. Too often the genius of man prompts him to play for governmental advantage, and the success which has been achieved in this particular, has led to the formation of groups which seek this very advantage. We are a busy people, preoccupied in too large degree with purely commercial considerations, and we have not the time to consider that the failure of government to prevent inequalities has made it possible for mischievous spirits to develop prejudice against the institutions of government, rather than against administrative policy. There is a very important difference here. This difference bears directly on profiteering, which is today, the most sinister influence in American life. It is not a new thing in America. The tribe of profiteers has simply multiplied under the favoring light of the war. For years, large contributions have been made to the republican campaign fund for no purpose except to buy a governmental underhold, and to make illegal profits as the result of preference. Such largesses are today a greater menace to our country than the most vicious of the countless temporary profiteers who are making a mockery of honest business, but who can live and fatten only in time of disturbed prices. If I am called to service as President means will be found, if they do not already exist, for coming into exceptions to the great mass of square dealing American business men, to use the same yardstick of honesty that governs most of us in our dealings with our fellowmen, or in language that they may understand, to suffer the penalty of criminal law.

There is another reason for the fabulous contributions to the present republican campaign fund. Much money of course, has been subscribed in proper partisan zeal but the great bulk has been given with the definite idea of gaining service in return. Many of the industries, guided by a most dangerous industrial philosophy, believe that in the controversy between employer and employee their will should be enforced, even at the point of the bayonet. I speak knowingly. I have passed through many serious industrial troubles. I know something of the psychology, the stakes through which they pass, and the dangerous attempts that are sometimes made to end them. Disputes between labor and capital are inevitable. The disposition to gain the best bargain possible characterizes the whole field of exchange, whether it be for product, or for labor for money. If strikes are prolonged public opinion always settles them. Public opinion should determine results in America. Public opinion is the most interesting characteristic of a democracy, and it is the safety valve to the government. It may, at times, be necessary for government to inquire into the facts of a dispute, but facts and not conclusions should be submitted. The determining form of unprejudiced public opinion should be the basis of this process. Governmental agencies must give a valiant eye to the protection of life and property, and maintain firmness but absolute impartiality. This is always the real test, but if official conduct of business is not maintained, our government is not a government. These affairs untarnished by distrust. This is not an academic observation. It is the mere result of experience. Unrest has been reinforced in no small degree by the great mass of unemployed men, who have been looking for work, but have come to our shores by the thousands. As they have become acquainted with the customs and opportunities of American life, thousands of them have become citizens. However, the work of assimilation too long was merely automatic. One million six hundred thousand and foreign born in this country cannot read or write our language. Our immigrants, assembled in the great trade centers to meet the needs of the hour. Without home or community ties; many have been more or less nomadic, creating the problem of excessive turnover, which has perplexed manufacturing plants. But this has not been the worst phase of the situation. Unfamiliar with law, having no understanding of the principles of our government, they have fallen an easy prey to unscrupulous and designing persons. Public opinion has been isolated from the currents of opinion, all due to their not being able to read or write our language. It is the duty of the federal government to stimulate the work of Americanization, through the work of the church, school, community agencies, state governments and industry itself. In the past many industries that have suffered from chronic restlessness have been the chief contributors to their own troubles. The business world has been too often no attempt was made to educate him to domestic ideals, for the simple reason that it adversely affected the ledger. It has been my observation that the man who learns our language and respects the law, becomes a citizen and his interest in the impulsive processes of revolution diminishes. We must be patient in the work of assimilation and studiously avoid any evidence of misunderstanding. We have a composite nation. The Almighty doubtless intended it to be such. We will not, however, develop patriotism unless we demonstrate the difference between despotism and democracy. The law is not present now, and we should return at the earliest opportunity, to the statutory provisions passed in time of peace for the general welfare. There is no condition now that warrants any infringement on the rights of the individual, or on the liberty of the press. The greatest measure of individual freedom consistent with the safety of our institutions should be given. Excessive regulations cause manifestations that compel respect for the law. The police power, therefore, called to cause the legislative authority acted unwisely.

A forbearing policy is not the proper one for the deliberate enemy of our institutions. He is of the kind that knows conditions abroad and here. The difference between autocracy and democracy is well known. The Federal Reserve mission is administered by business men. Does any one contribute more to the making and success of railroads than the farmer or to the creation and prosperity of the banks, or to the stability of manufacturing and trade centers, or to the agencies interested in exporting?

Our objective should be increased tenantry. With the period of occupancy uncertain, the renter strips land of its fertile elements, and each diminishes the value of the land. Under the operation of the Federal Reserve and the Farm Loan acts, encouragement has come to thousands who find that industry, character and intelligence are a golden security to the people's banker, the government of the United States. Multiply our home owners, and you will make the way of the seditious agitator more difficult. Bring into the picture of American life more families, happily a part of garden and flowers all their own and you will find new strength running into the current of the national patriotism. Help to equalize the burdens of taxation by making the holders of hidden wealth pay their share with those whose property is in sight. In short, remove the penalty imposed upon home-building thrift, and thousands of contented house holders under the shelter of their own roof will look upon government with affection, recognizing that in protecting it, they protect themselves. There are more home-owners in America than ever before. The prosperity of the country under Democratic rule has been widely diffused. Never before has the great mass of people shared in the blessings of plenty. There is much to be done, however, in multiplying our home owners. Nothing will bring more solid return to the welfare of the republic.

Common prudence would suggest that we increase to our utmost, our area of tillable land. The race between increased consumption and added acreage has been an unequal one. Modern methods of soil treatment have been helpful, but they have their limitations. There are still vast tracts of land in our country, performing no service to humanity. They require only the applied genius of men, to cover them with the bloom and harvest of human necessities. The government should turn its best engineering talent to the task of irrigation projects. Every dollar spent will yield compensating results.

Any discussion of the question of food supply leads very quickly to the closely related matter of transportation. There is no one thing which brings us so intermittently to critical condition than the insufficiency of our transportation facilities. Both the railroads and the public are to blame. There has been no material addition to the total mileage in the last ten years and the increase in terminals has been much less than required. At the beginning of the war, the rolling stock was not general but was sufficient to bring the entire railroad systems of the country in disrepair. The good suffered with the evil. When the transportation lines were taken over by the government, they were barely able to keep through the task of emergency. In operation, the elimination of the long haul, and the merging of every mile of track and terminal and every car and engine into a co-ordinated plan of operation, enabled the government to transport troops and supplies, at the same time, affording a great and satisfactory outlet for our industries.

It should be remembered in this connection that except for the motor truck which supplemented transportation by rail, and except for the great pipelines which carried oil for industrial purposes, we should not, in all probability, have been able to throw our deciding strength into the balance and win the war. Any attempt to discredit the federal operation of railroads during the years of grave emergency is unwarranted. In the case of those who knew the facts it is insincere. Too much cannot be said in praise of those who directed this work nor of the men who physically operated the lines under the discouraging conditions of poor equipment. But all of this is water in the wheel. The problem of the railroads is still with us. The government and the public should render every co-operation in the utmost good faith, to give thorough test to private ownership. The railroads have been the subject of the government can, without loss of efficiency, be reduced to a maximum of four billion dollars, including sinking fund and interest on the national debt. When we enter the League of Nations, we should have the same time to diminish our cost of armament. To continue expenditures in either war or the navy departments on a vast scale, once our membership in the League is assured, would seem to be a very definite refutation of the advantages of the world plan. The League is the world plan. The League is the world plan. The League is the world plan.

Since the last national conventions of the two great parties, a world war has been fought, history unprecedented in the annals of the world. In the deplorable dark hours, it seemed as though a world dictator was inevitable, and that henceforth men and women would stand at attention in the face of the drawn sword of military autocracy. The very soul of America was shocked and her people were in a state of panic. What America did need no repetition here. It is known of all men. History will acclaim it—poets will find it an inspiration throughout the ages. And yet, the very line in the League of Nations platform that breathes an emotion of pride, or recites our national achievement, in fact if a man from Mars were to depend upon the republican platform or its spoken interpretation by the candidate of the League of Nations, he would not find a syllable telling him that the war has been won, and that America has saved the world. How ungenerous, how ungracious, all of this; how unfair that a mere group of leaders should be bestowed with the name of the party of Lincoln and McKinley and Roosevelt.

The discourtesy to the President is an affair of political intrigue. History will make it odious. As well might it be directed at a wounded soldier of the front line in the trench, the strength of the other was broken in the enormous labors of his office. But others were ignored—the men and women who labored at home with an industry and a skill that words cannot move the lather by day and the needle by night? What of the organizations superbly effective, that conserved food and fed the world—that carried nourishment to the very front trench in the face of hell's furies—that buried the dead in the dark shelter of the night—that inspired business men and artisans of all parties to work in harmony? What of the millions of men, women and children of all creeds, religions and otherwise, who stood in the ranks of the soldiers overseas, undivided by things they once quarreled about? What of the government itself—confirming the faith of our fathers as sufficient to meet the storms of time? Why the sneer at labor with the veiled charge that it was a "black" party? The spectacle is sufficient to convince any unprejudiced man that the republican leaders who have taken charge of their party and nominated its candidate, are no more possessed of the spirit of the hour than they were in 1912 when they precipitated a revolution within the rank and file of a great organization. If further proof were needed, the action of the present Congress supplies it. Not a constructive law can be cited. Money and time were wasted in seeking to make a military triumph an odious chapter in history. The Democratic party is not a party of reaction, but a party of progress. It is a party that after two years of searching inquiry, there was nothing revealed in that vast enterprise carrying billions of dollars in expense, upon which they could base even a whisper of dishonesty.

The Mexican situation, trying to our patience, has not begun to show signs of improvement. Not the least of the things that have contributed to it, is a realization by the people of that country, that we have neither the lust for their domain, nor disposition to disturb their sovereign rights. And upon the border and incentive to individual efforts seems to be making a national aspiration.

Many elements have made our republic enduring; not the least of which is a sustained gratitude. The richest traditions of our land are woven from historic threads that tell of the courage and the sacrifice of our fathers. They made the first impressions of history upon the minds of our children and bind the hearts of generations together. Never in all time will the performance of our soldiers in the late war be surpassed. From farm, factory and factory they came, together in the training camps—from countryside and city—men whose hands were calloused by labor, others whose shoulders showed the stoop of office task—the blood of many nations flowing in their veins, and the training back to the first day in training. We must not forget that war breaks into the plans of young men, and their chart of life is in a sense more important than any calculation later on. In college and shop—in the base for their careers. Thousands of them by the circumstance of injury or the disturbance of domestic conditions which war always brings, were compelled to change their whole course of life. To those who were called to the colors, we owe a debt to the wounded, but we must realize that considerable compensation is due those who lost much by the break in their material hopes and aspirations. The genius of its heart, must inspire intensive thoughtful effort, to assist those who saved our all. I feel deeply that the rehabilitation of the disabled soldiers of the recent war is one of the most vital issues before the people and I will, as a candidate, pledge myself and my party to those young Americans to do all in my power to secure for them without unnecessary delay, the immediate training which is so necessary to them to compete in the world.

There is no narrow dividing line between the legitimate and illegitimate in political campaigns. One contemplates the organization and maintenance of such facilities as are necessary to advise the people of the facts before them, the issues; the other carries the deliberate purpose to interfere with the honest rendering of the verdict. How misguided some of our people are. Recognizing that readjustment must be made, they believe that they will fare better if they campaign with those with whom they dealt on the base of campaign contributions in days gone by. They do not sense the dangers they threaten. The sort of readjustment which will appeal to our respect and ultimately to our general prosperity is the honest readjustment. Any unfair adjustment simply delays the ultimate process and we should remember the lesson of history that one extreme usually leads to another. We desire industrial peace. We want our people to have an abiding confidence in government, but no readjustment made under reactionary auspices will carry with it the confidence of the country. If I were asked to name in these trying days the first essential overshadowing every other consideration, the response would be confidence in government. It would be nothing less than a calamity if the next administration were elected under corrupt auspices. There is unrest in the country; our people have passed through trying experience. The European war before it engulfed us, aroused every racial throb in a nation of composite citizenship. The conflict in which we participated carried, anxieties into every community and thousands upon thousands of homes were touched by tragedy. The inconspicuous incidents of the war have been disquieting; the failure of the Republican Congress to repeal annoying taxes has added to our troubles. The natural impulse is to forget the past, to develop new interests, to create a refreshed and new atmosphere in life. We want to forget the war and be free from the troubling thought of its possibility in the future. We want the dawn and the dews of a new morning. We want happiness in the land, the feeling that the square deal among men and women and government is not to be interfered with by a purchased preference. We want a change from the old world of yesterday where international intrigue, made the people mere pawns on the chessboard of a few men. We want a change from the old industrial world where the man who toiled was assured a "full dinner pail" as his only lot and portion. But how are we to make the change? Which way shall we go? We stand at the forks of the road and must choose which way to follow. One leads to higher citizenship, a freer expression of the individual and a fuller life for all. The other leads to reaction, the rule of the few over the many and the restriction of the average man's chances to grow upward.

Our devices backed by unlimited prodigious expenditures will be used to confuse and to lure. But I have an abiding faith that the pitfalls will be avoided and the right road chosen. The leaders opposed to Democracy promise to put the country back to the "normal" desired by the masses. This can only mean the so-called normal of former reactionary administrations, the outstanding feature of which was a pitiless war for production and a small wage for a long day of labor. My vision does not turn back to the "normal" desired by the masses. I see a higher stature amidst better environment than that of the past. Our view is toward the sunrise of tomorrow with its progress and its promise of better things. The opposition stands in the skyline of the setting sun, to the old days of reaction. I accept the nomination of our party, obedient to the Divine Sovereign of all peoples, and hopeful that by His will the way will be shown for helpful service.

Government bureaus during the war had close contact with the business organizations of the country. That experience revealed the modern need of reorganization along purely business lines. The advantages of a democratic government need not be recounted. It has been held by experts that it involves the disadvantage of disbursements, authorized by the law, making power without sufficient knowledge of the need of the service, or the possibilities of extravagance, an answer to this is the budget system. No successful business enterprise of any size can operate without it. For a hundred years the federal unit, and the states as well, made appropriations without determining the difference between department need and capacity at the same time, paying little attention to the relation as between income and expense. Many of the states have adopted the budget system, and with the success that carries no exception. Efficiency has been improved—departmental responsibility has been centered. The same can be done by the federal government. The system will reveal at once, as it did in the states, a vast surplusage of employees. It awakens individual interest, encourages responsibility. There are too many opportunities to assert itself. The normal course of least resistance, develops in government bureaus a hardpan, which retards progress. When the realization is made that the federal government is to be a part of the world plan, the federal government must be able to measure its expenditures against the cost of armament. To continue expenditures in either war or the navy departments on a vast scale, once our membership in the League is assured, would seem to be a very definite refutation of the advantages of the world plan. The League is the world plan. The League is the world plan. The League is the world plan.

Our devices backed by unlimited prodigious expenditures will be used to confuse and to lure. But I have an abiding faith that the pitfalls will be avoided and the right road chosen. My vision does not turn back to the "normal" desired by the masses. I see a higher stature amidst better environment than that of the past. Our view is toward the sunrise of tomorrow with its progress and its promise of better things. The opposition stands in the skyline of the setting sun, to the old days of reaction. I accept the nomination of our party, obedient to the Divine Sovereign of all peoples, and hopeful that by His will the way will be shown for helpful service.

I accept the nomination of our party, obedient to the Divine Sovereign of all peoples, and hopeful that by His will the way will be shown for helpful service.

Our devices backed by unlimited prodigious expenditures will be used to confuse and to lure. But I have an abiding faith that the pitfalls will be avoided and the right road chosen. The leaders opposed to Democracy promise to put the country back to the "normal" desired by the masses. This can only mean the so-called normal of former reactionary administrations, the outstanding feature of which was a pitiless war for production and a small wage for a long day of labor. My vision does not turn back to the "normal" desired by the masses. I see a higher stature amidst better environment than that of the past. Our view is toward the sunrise of tomorrow with its progress and its promise of better things. The opposition stands in the skyline of the setting sun, to the old days of reaction. I accept the nomination of our party, obedient to the Divine Sovereign of all peoples, and hopeful that by His will the way will be shown for helpful service.

VALLEY VIEW

A very delightful dinner was given Wednesday, August 4 at the home of J. T. Howard, near Valley View.

Covers were laid for about 50, of which number there were 13 children, six single and seven married; besides 18 grand children present.

In the afternoon a very appropriate sermon was preached by Bro. W. L. Peel, who has been conducting a protracted meeting at the Valley View Christian church since last Saturday.

It is hoped that everyone present will be permitted to have another such honor conferred upon them of attending the birthday dinner of Bro. Howard who was 53 years old on that date.

RUTH GETS HIS 41ST HOME RUN

Chicago, August 7.—The three leading batters in the American League fattened up their averages during the past week, but "Babe" Ruth, home run champion, who is in fourth place, suffered a slump before Dick Kerr in the last game of the series between Chicago and New York. He was at bat five times, but connected for only one hit. Tris Speaker, the Cleveland manager, who tops the batters, gathered 11 hits in 7 games and boosted his mark from .411 to .417, which is 15 points better than that of George Sisler, the St. Louis star, who is the runner-up with an average of .402. Joe Jackson, the slugging outfielder of the Chicago White Sox, is third with a mark of .398, while Ruth is hitting .391. The averages are players who have participated in 50 or more contests and include games of Wednesday.

Ruth continues to be the sensation of the league. This was evidenced again in the series just played in Chicago between the Yankees and the White Sox. For the four days a crowd officially estimated at 126,000 came out to witness the games with a hope of seeing the big southpaw slugger crack the ball out in the field. Only once during the series was Ruth able to "deliver" on his specialty. That was on the second day when he drove the ball on a line into the right field bleachers for four bases. Claude Williams was pitching and it was the third homer Ruth had collected at his expense. This smash marked Ruth's 38th home run. He made his 39th Thursday, and his 40th and 41st homers Friday. Against Faber the following day he was unable to hit, because the game was close and he was ordered passed. In the opening game with Clete on the mound Ruth was helpless.

Other leading batters: Rice, Washington, .366; E. Collins, Chicago, .364; Mousie, New York, .354; Weaver, Chicago, .341; Hendryx, Boston, .337; Felsch, Chicago, .332; Judge, Washington, .323; Jamieson, Cleveland, .322; Jacobson, St. Louis, .331; Milen, Washington, .326; Cobb, Detroit, .32.

Peter Hornsby, of St. Louis, continues to head the National League batters who have played in 50 or more games. The St. Louis star knocked out 13 hits in his last 6 games and boosted his average to .372. J. Smith, a teammate, who was the runner-up among the regulars last week, went into a slump and dropped to fifth place with an average of .326, while Nicholson, Pittsburgh, came along strong and is now runner-up to Hornsby with an average of .335. Roush, of Cincinnati, has pulled up in third place with a mark of .333 and Young, of New York, is holding fourth place with a mark of .327. He is showing the way with 36 thefts, while Roush, of Cincinnati, has 22, and Neale, another member of the world's champions, has pilfered 20.

Other leading batters: Williams, of Philadelphia, .323; Konetchy, Brooklyn, .321; Myers, Brooklyn, .320; Hollocher, Chicago, .318; Stock, St. Louis, .317; Daubert, Cincinnati, .308; Terry, Chicago, .305; E. Smith, New York, .305; Flack, Chicago, .304; Groh, of Cincinnati, .303; Merkle, Chicago, .302.

SEVERE HAIL STORM

A severe hailstorm which wrought great damage to tobacco in Garrard county Friday afternoon and evening is reported. Great damage was done especially to tobacco, while in some localities the corn is said to have suffered to a great extent. City Judge G. Murray Smith, of Richmond, was in that county, making the trip thru in his automobile, and was compelled, he reports, to take refuge during the storm, which he described as the most severe he had encountered in years. The rainfall in the southern part of Madison county is said to have been heavy, while there was but a liberal sprinkling here.

TERRIBLY SWOLLEN

Suffering Described As Torture Relieved by Black-Draught.

Rossville, Ga.—Mrs. Kate Lee Able, of this place, writes: "My husband is an engineer, and once while lifting, he injured himself with a piece of heavy machinery, across the abdomen. He was so sore he could not bear to press on himself at all, on chest or abdomen. He weighed 165 lbs., and fell off until he weighed 110 lbs., in two weeks.

He became constipated and it looked like he would die. We had three different doctors, yet with all their medicine, his bowels failed to act. He would turn up a ten-cent bottle of castor oil, and drink it two or three days in succession. He did this yet without result. We became desperate, he suffered so. He was swollen terribly. He told me his suffering could only be described as torture.

I sent and bought Theodor's Black-Draught. I made him take a big dose, and when it began to act he fainted, and he was in such misery, but he got relief and began to mend at once. He got well, and we both feel he owes his life to Theodor's Black-Draught."

DISTEMPER AMONG FOX HOUNDS HERE

Considerable consternation prevails among the owners of fox hounds in this part of the state, owing to the third appearance of distemper, which is reported as being prevalent in some sections. A number of the Madison county dogs have fallen victims to the malady, which has been the cause of the death of several valuable canines in other counties. There have been no fatalities reported in Madison county during the present attack, although there were several last spring when the disease first made its appearance. J. L. Kamtaz reported the appearance of the disease near his place, but none of his dogs are afflicted. Special care is being taken of them and many of the chases booked for this month have been called off. Jennings Maupin, county clerk, who is the owner of a number of valuable dogs, reports his canines as being free from the disease, as do R. B. Terrill, C. W. Lanter and a number of other local fanciers.

Here, There, Everywhere

Sugar sells the year round in Denver and Colorado generally for 15 cents per pound, and it is now said it is being "bootlegged" out of the city and state. At Versailles a number of young men have been arrested for playing baseball on Sunday. Ten cases of whisky were stolen from the attic of Philip Churchman in Louisville. John Samuel, 18, Maysville, was killed in a cotton machine there. Miss Dorcas Duncan, Raleigh, N. C., is dead at the age of 117 years.

GIBSONS BUY POPULAR BUSINESS PROPERTY

One of the largest deals in Richmond business property in some time was consummated Saturday morning when the L. P. Evans Real Estate Agency sold the building at the northwest corner of Main and Second streets, known as the Stockton corner, to Drs. W. M. and E. H. Gibson. Mr. Evans made the sale for the heirs of the late Mrs. J. V. Logan, who were the owners of this very valuable piece of city real estate. They are Mr. Newland Jones, of Phoenix, Ariz., and Mrs. B. H. Neale, of Richmond. The consideration is said to be slightly over $12,000.

This location has been occupied by Messrs. Stockton as a drug store for many years. They recently purchased the building now occupied by Middleton's drug store, and will move to that location about the first of the year.

It is the plan of the Drs. Gibson, who own the Richmond Drug Company, with popular E. H. Ellis as manager, to completely remodel the building they have bought and make it one of the handsomest drug stores in any country town in the state. Then they will move the Richmond Drug Company to the new location.

POFF'S EXAMINING TRIAL NOT BOOKED

The examining trial of Andy Poff, constable of near Bobtown, who shot and killed Jasper Kirby, at the Berea fair grounds Thursday evening, and who was taken to Lexington as a result of alleged threats against him, has not been set and probably will not be for some time.

County Judge W. K. Price, who will conduct the examining trial, said that unless the defendant, who is charged with murder, petitions for a trial within three days, such action will not be taken except at the pleasure and judgment of the court.

It is understood that relatives of Poff were in Richmond Friday night in an effort to procure bond for the officer, but such action is not admissible until after the examining trial. No one approached either Sheriff Pete Whitlock or Judge Price regarding bond for Poff, they assert.

EIGHT MEN TO BE HANGED ON SAME DAY

(By Associated Press)
Chicago, Aug. 7.—Richard Wilson, safe blower, was today sentenced to be hanged for the murder of Thomas O'Donnell, a factory watchman. Wilson's companion has also been sentenced to be hanged on the same day. This makes eight convicted murderers to die on that date, but as there is only room in the jail for a double scaffold, the men will be hung in relay.

HARDING WORKS HARD FOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE

(By Associated Press)
New York, Aug. 7.—The Republican National Committee and Senator Harding are doing everything they can "consistently do" to secure ratification of the federal woman suffrage amendment. Chairman Hays told the committee of Connecticut women who visited him today, at the republican headquarters. Hays told the women he believed it would be wrong for any party leader to attempt to coerce the Governor or legislature of any state which had not acted on the amendment.

PAIGE

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

THE utility of the motor car is no longer confined to the masculine side of the family. The woman of today, in her own important sphere of social, business and charitable duties, is also turning to the motor car as a means toward the more efficient conduct of her affairs.

The trend of feminine thought in this direction finds definite expression in the increasingly large number of Paige Light Sixes sold to women.

There can be no doubt that the smart five-passenger Paige Glenbrook admirably meets the requirements of the feminine motorist. It is a car of mechanical excellence, a car of luxurious comfort and, quite as important, a car noted for its ease of control.

Of course, you can better judge this Paige model when you have seen it and enjoyed a trial ride. All we ask is the privilege of making a single demonstration.

NATIONS CONFER ON POLISH CRISIS

(By Associated Press)
Warsaw, Aug. 7.—The Polish Foreign Office has sent a note to the Allies and a special note to the United States, on the actual political situation, it was learned here today.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The special Polish note has not yet been received, is was stated today at the State Department.

Exchanges between Washington, London and Paris on the Polish crisis are continuing, officials said, but declined to discuss their purport or to say whether the views of the government are in accord. The Allied nations are known to have discussed a tentative plan to aid the Poles but details are carefully guarded. The State Department officials still maintain silence as to yesterday's White House conference between President Wilson and Secretary Colby and Under Secretary Davis.

You can make this surprising experiment in our store — The Test of the Two Violins Violins differ subtly in tone! Test the New Edison Realism by that fact.

We have an "Ave Maria" RE-CREATION played by Albert Spalding with his Guarnerius. This famous violin has a brilliant, singing tone. We have a second "Ave Maria" RE-CREATION played by Carl Flesch with his genuine Stradivarius. This violin has a rich, mellow tone.

Come in and compare these two RE-CREATIONS—tone for tone. If the New Edison makes clear the distinction between the singing Guarnerius and the mellow Stradivarius, you know it has perfect realism for you.

The NEW EDISON "The Phonograph with a Soul"

Albert Spalding himself recently took part in a test of the New Edison's realism, at New York City. He played in direct comparison with the RE-CREATION of his performance by the New Edison. Mr. Henry Hadley, one of the jury of the three distinguished musicians who listened from behind a screen, said: "The RE-CREATION matched Mr. Spalding's performance tone for tone." The New Edison is the only phonograph which has given this conclusive proof of its perfect realism. It has triumphed in 4,000 such comparison-tests.

PRICES! HALT!

Since 1914, the total price increase in the New Edison has been less than 15%. Mr. Edison has, personally, absorbed more than one half of the increased cost of manufacture. He may not be able to do this much longer. Now—if you want to-day's price, our Budget plan will help you. It distributes the payment over the months to come.

TAX ON BUSINESS IS GIVEN AN AIRING

More Attacks Made By Small Dealers Who Are Furnished With Explanation

The city license tax was the subject of another discussion Thursday night at the regular meeting of the city council, there being a number of complaints regarding the amount of taxes paid, and Mayor Evans, as well as other city officials, was asked relative to the liability of a change. The first to complain was a small restaurant keeper, asserting that he had but a few hundred dollars invested, but paid more than some of the greater business establishments where thousands of dollars were invested. He was given an outline of the tax list, and admitted that together with his restaurant he sold cigarettes and also maintained a small soda fountain. These all come under different heads, and each is taxed. This is the cause for the high rate paid by a small dealer of this character. Should he have thousands of dollars invested in any of the same lines, or all of them for that matter, he would not be compelled to pay more tax, and he could not see the consistency of it. He was informed by the mayor that, according to the list of his business, there was no relief in sight, at least for the present, since the law on this could not be changed, and the official admitted that it looked unfair in a way. However, the tax list was represented by several lines sold by the restaurant, hence he was assessed. It is the same of story at the meetings, it being the milliners of the city, some of whom declared they were charged as much for selling a single ostrich feather as others were for maintaining an extensive business. The ordinance was drawn up after careful consideration and all lines were given special attention, and the arrangement in many cases is said to be very satisfactory, although the above is the seventh of a series of complaints made since the new law became effective.

BIG ENROLLMENT AT EASTERN NORMAL

It is very evident that the enrollment at Eastern Normal for the coming term of school will be very extensive, owing to the big list already in, and which is ever increasing. The enrollment promises, together with those already on the roster, to tax the capacity of the institution in the way of quarters, and it is fortunate the new dormitories will soon be provided. The work will start very soon.

The various departments of the college promise to resume with one of the largest personnel of instructors in its history, as well as one of the biggest number of students. The past year has been eminently successful, and will go on record as one of the foremost in the state. The records will show the large list of graduates and that several hundred have taken up social studies there.

CUPID'S RIGHT BOWER

Just as County Judge W. K. Price was entering a machine to go to the Berea fair Thursday morning, he was halted by a young man, Holt Goodrich of Berea, and informed that his services were desired for a few minutes. When asked what he wanted, the young man replied, "I want to get married, and want you to marry me." Judge Price, who had been "molesting" in a like manner the day before while hearing a case said something about some "regulation" upon the part of Cupid; then went to his office and found Miss Grace Davis together with a number of the members of her family awaiting the officiating party. The knot was soon dispersed and all departed, but, strange to say, all were in attendance at the fair all day.

BEWARE OF LEAKS

Before making a test should be made for leaks in a screw top jar by placing the top on the jar without a rubber, according to the home economics department, college of agriculture, Lexington. If the thumb nail can be inserted between top and glass the top is usually defective. Place rubber and top in position and screw down tightly. Pull rubber from position. Release.

OLD TIME TEACHERS TAKING EXAMINATION

There is a goodly number of teachers who have not been in a school room for a number of years taking the special examination at the Caldwell school, the meeting being for the purpose of furnishing additional instructors for the schools of this and other counties if possible. The grade papers will be returned as soon as possible with the intention of filling the quota in the very near future.

The examinations, which were booked for the court house, were transferred to the school building, owing to the noise from the street caused by the improvement work. The officers of the county are of the belief that there will be quite a number of additional teachers added to the list in Madison county as a result of the event, and that much benefit will result. The special examinations are being held throughout this section of the state as a result of the petition of the county superintendents acquainting the superintendent of public instruction with the fact that there were many vacancies.

SHANKS OUT OF STATE, POLICE THINK

That Elden Shanks, colored, who killed John Hammond, L. & N. track foreman, has left the state, is the opinion of the police, who have been on the watch for clues leading to his whereabouts for some time, and that he lost no time in making his escape from the city is assured. He was not in Richmond most of the day one week ago Friday, when he committed the fatal assault, as was reported, and certain officers who have been making efforts to apprehend him are positive that this information was given out for the purpose of placing Shanks in the role of one not worried over the situation, and that meanwhile he was putting a great distance between himself and Richmond. It is not believed that he boarded the midnight train at Berea, as was reported, since officers there were notified of the murder, and they always work hand in hand with local officials, and the latter feel assured that Shanks made an overland trip in order to get out of Madison county, at least.

LOCAL HOUND GOES TO WALKER KENNELS

C. W. Lanter has contributed to the noted Woods Walker fox hound kennels, since he has disposed of an unbroken puppy 11 months old to the well known breeder at Paint Lick. The consideration is reported by Mr. Lanter as $100. The dog is said to be of a good strain and will add materially to the list of Mr. Walker's, which is attracting much attention at this time throughout the country. Mr. Lanter, in speaking of the influenza attack among dogs, states that a liberal sprinkling of sulphur in their kennels, and especially their bedding, is beneficial, and also advocates this manner of protection against influenza. His advice is being followed by a number of other dog owners.
